

Intellectual excellence to be rewarded

Award to strengthen ties between academic, business worlds

by Sharon Bishin

Concordia, McGill, Université du Québec à Montréal and Université de Montréal (including its affiliates Ecole Polytechnique and Haute Etudes Commerciales), have joined forces with the Chambre de commerce de Montréal and have created a $5,000 annual prize for the best doctoral thesis written at a Montréal university. Theses will be judged on originality, presentation and their immediate and future impact on their discipline.

The competition is a unique and challenging undertaking because it welcomes submissions from all disciplines.

Academic, business connection

The Prix d'Excellence, as it will be called, is funded by Bell

Canada and is intended to reinforce the efforts of the Chambre to strengthen ties between the academic and business worlds. It is designed to draw attention to the City of Montréal as a University city with academic dimensions unparalleled in Canada and seen in very few urban centres in the entire world.

The deadline for submissions is June 1st (see the application form on page 10).

Motivation to excel

Concordia Graduate Studies Dean Fred Szabo says he expects the prize will serve as a motivating force for outstanding research and superb scholarship.

"An average thesis is between 200 and 300 pages," he says, "and we are interested in upgrading the verbal, visual and aesthetic quality of thesis presentation so that it matches the quality of the research

'A university city with academic dimensions' itself. After all, doctoral theses are published by the home university of their authors, thereby reflecting on the academic qualities of the institution itself."

Szabo sits on the selection panel, composed of the four Montréal Deans of Graduate Studies, and four representatives of the Chambre de commerce (its president Claude Garcia, a representative of Bell Canada, an academic, and a representative of Les Grands Montréalais' organizing committee).

Each school: four submissions

Each school may nominate a maximum of four theses; each thesis must be accompanied by a reasoned application from the student and a supporting statement from the department in which it was written.

The winning thesis will be selected in September and the first prize will be awarded at the October 13th Annual Gala of L'Académie des Grands Montréalais. The winner will become one of the year's "Grand(e) Montréalais(e)s."

Recognizing outstanding achievement

Awards of Distinction created by Commerce and Administration faculty

Tuesday, May 17, will mark the first presentation of Concordia's Awards of Distinction, newly created by the Faculty of Commerce and Administration to recognize outstanding achievement each year by Canadians primarily in the fields of finance or commerce.

The five inaugural recipients will be:

Stephen Jarislowsky, President of Jarislowsky, Fraser and Company Ltd.; Roger Lachapelle, President and Chief Executive Officer, Corby Distilleries Ltd.; Eric Molson, Deputy Chairman of the Board, The Molson Companies Limited; Eugene Reisman, President of First Quebec Corporation; and Louise Roy, President and General Manager, Montreal Urban Community Transit Corporation (MUCTC-STCUM).

The entire Concordia community is invited to attend the presentation ceremony, which will take place at 5 p.m. in the D.B. Clarke Theatre.

A wine and cheese reception for Commerce and Administration faculty members will follow the awards ceremony.

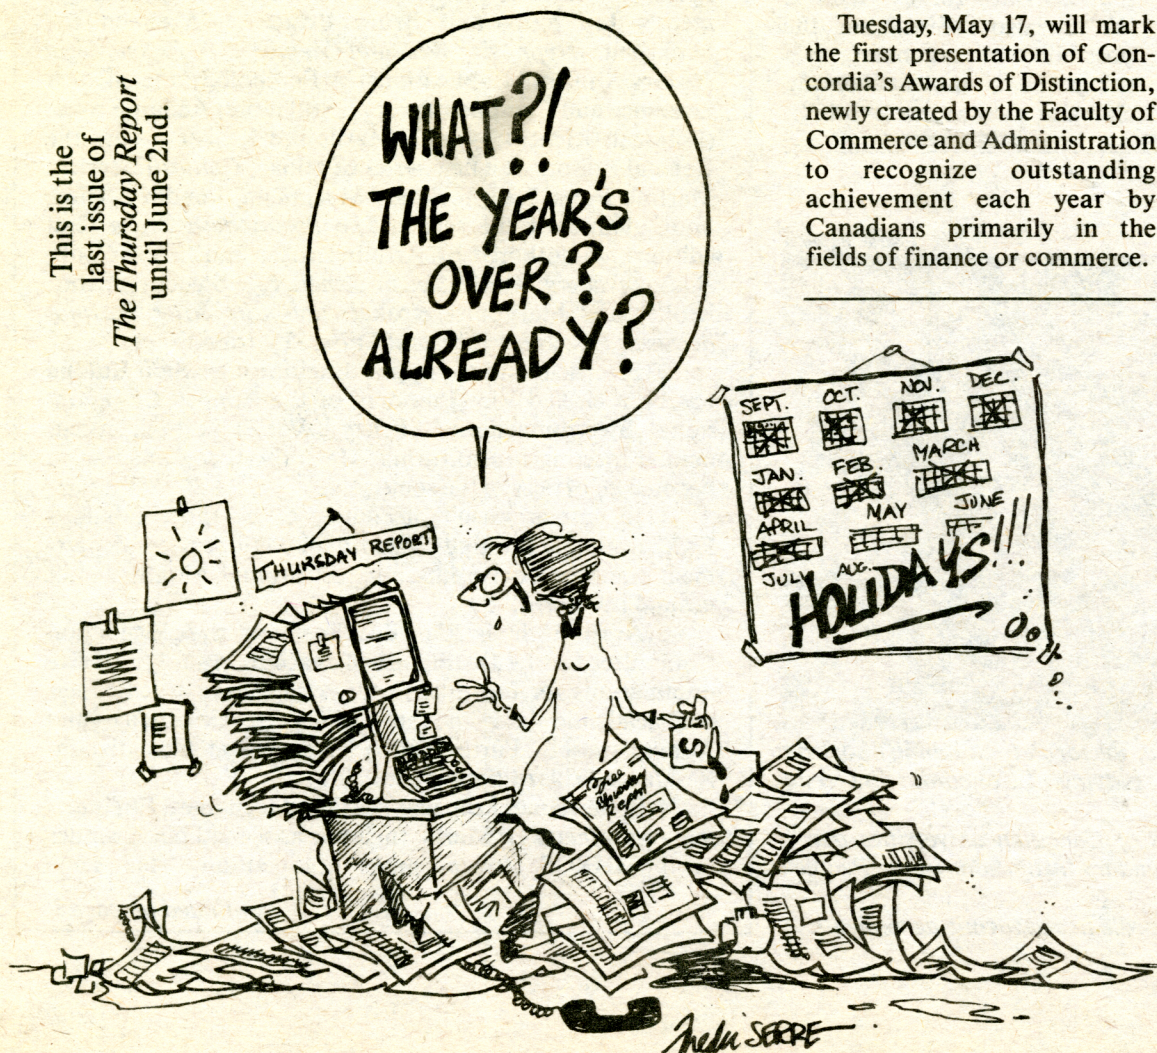

Committee members

The nominees were chosen by a 10-member faculty committee after the awards were approved by the Board of Governors. They are:

Vishwanath Baba, Management chair; Henri Colas, Executive-in-Residence, (Management); Irene Devine, Associate

Dean, Faculty of Commerce and Administration; David Gandhi, Finance chair; Jack Goodwin, (Management); Lawrence Kryzanowski (Finance); Martin Kusy, Decision Sciences & MIS chair; Lee McGown, Marketing Department Director; Willard Porterfield, Executive-in-Residence (Management) and Pierre Sevigny, Executive in Residence (Finance) committee chair.

Loyola campus alumni launch scholarship

by Diane McPeak

Effective this September the children and grandchildren of Loyola College graduates will be eligible for three $1,000 entrance scholarships to Concordia.

Details about the scholarships — called the Loyola Alumni Association Educational Grant — will be announced during a fund-raising dinner dance to be held in the Oval Room of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, starting at 8 p.m. next Friday, April 22. The black-tie event will be preceded by cocktails at 7:00 p.m.

The price of admission is $80 per person. Canadian Airlines International will offer a door prize of two tickets to any one of its European destinations or Brazil.

The $1,000 scholarships will be available to students entering their first year of university. To be eligible they must be enrolled in full-time courses and demonstrate financial need, leadership ability and community involvement.

Together, the Concordia, Loyola and Sir George Williams Alumni Associations have approximately 45,000 members.

Loyola College's roots date back to 1896. The Loyola Alumni Association was established 10 years later in 1906; the Association of Alumni at Sir George Williams in 1937. On the recommendation of a joint committee of the alumni of the founding institutions, the Concordia University Alumni Association came into being in late 1982.

Sir George and Loyola graduates automatically become members of the Concordia University Alumni Association. Each association is independently constituted, however, and has its own bylaws. The Concordia Alumni Association also has representatives on its Board from each of the founding associations.

Carolishca Locas, Acting Director of Alumni, says "the role of the alumni association is not only to give its members the means to promote the interests of their alma mater, but to bind the members more closely to one another and the University."

The link is achieved, in part, through a Class Officers Program, and by participating in "friendraising and fundraising."

The Class Officers Program was instituted with the graduating class of 1984. The idea is to maintain a strong link between graduates and their graduating class, and the University and the Alumni Association, ideally leading to a reunion five years after graduation.

A class officer might be asked to help organize social and educational events as part of a first major reunion, participate with fellow classmates in fundraising for scholarships and bursaries, help to promote the alumni association and/or assist in updating alumni records by forwarding news of Concordia classmates to the Alumni Office.

The Concordia University Alumni Association is committed to the development of a strong and cohesive chapter organization throughout Canada and the U.S. wherever numbers warrant.

In addition to several Canadian chapters, there are now Concordia chapters in San Francisco, New York, Los Angeles, and Hong Kong. All alumni are invited to Concordia events in distant locations.

Active annual alumni membership bestows several benefits and services, including regular invitations to social and educational events, library privileges, coverage by alumni insurance plans at substantial discounts, receiving Concordia's alumni magazine, an alumni correspondence program (which allows alumni to keep in touch with former classmates), and faculty and staff rates for intramural sports.

It also offers membership in Co-op Concordia, which provides substantial discounts on computers, printers, office and school supplies, student discounts on art materials in the Fine Arts Co-op, membership in Concordia's faculty clubs, and alumni travel benefits.

"The association," adds Locas, "is currently negotiating reduced rates at the YMCA, and is considering negotiating reduced rates for car rentals. We are also investigating the possibility of organizing two things: an alumni networking club and a wine tasting club."

Pre-trip reception

Charles Bélanger

Prior to his departure last week for The People's Republic of China, Rector Patrick Kenniff hosted a reception for some 45 of the Chinese students who are currently studying at Concordia University under the auspices of international agreements.

Kenniff is part of a nine-member AUCC delegation of heads of Canadian universities that is attending a series of meetings with the presidents of nine post-secondary institutions in the People's Republic of China.

In addition, he is to visit six of the universities with which Concordia has academic agreements.

Major Concordia conference to examine Conservative government's performance

The Political Science Department will be holding a national conference from April 29 to May 1 to bring together leading Canadian scholars for a thorough and dispassionate assessment of the Mulroney government's 1984 electoral aims; and of its record on delivering the party's electoral promises.

In the process, participants will engage in a reflection on the policy choices confronting Canadians heading into a new federal election.

The Progressive Conservative party came into power in 1984 after 19 years in opposition — except for the short-lived Clark government in 1980. A few of their policy objectives were economic renewal, social justice and national "reconciliation."

Four years later, with a fall election probable, it is time to draw the balance sheet and see what has really been achieved.

The conference is organized by the Graduate Program in Public Policy and Public Administration of the Department of Political Science at Concordia University.

It will take place in the Faculty Club, 7th Floor, Henry F. Hall Building, 1455 de Maisonneuve Blvd. West, Montreal.

There will be a total of 23 chairs and participants in five colloquia, covering "An era of economic renewal"; "Social justice"; "National reconciliation"; "Downsizing the state"; and "The administrative machinery."

Participants from Concordia will be Guy Lachapelle, speaking on income security; Everett Price, chair of the National reconciliations colloquium; Marguerite Mendell, chair of the Downsizing the state colloquium; and Harold Chorney, speaking on Tax reform and public finance.

Shaping your body . . . and your mind

James Gavin: "Wittingly or not, we are changed by the exercise we do"

by Sharon Bishin

ex. er. cize: to put into action; use.

There you have it; one (of several) definitions for what many of us pledge to do now that the winter coat has come off and the old bod is exposed.

But what makes us pick a specific form of exercise and how well do we follow a fitness regime?

These are only some of the questions Applied Social Science (ApSS) professor James Gavin has addressed in his new book Body Moves: The Psychology of Exercise (Stackpole Books).

"One of the things I'm interested in is the 'glue' or adherence feature of exercise. What makes people stick with it or drop out?" asks Gavin.

It's a good question considering statistics show that, at best, only 20% of North Americans exercise regularly (more than three times a week).

Sports psychology for all

Although the discipline of sports psychology has been around since the 1940s, much of the emphasis has been on elite athletes and competitors. In 1986, however, the American Psychological Association opened a Division of Exercise and Sports Psychology. Society was looking with a new eye at fitness. And by 1990, the U.S. Health department would like to see at least 60% of adults engaged in some form of consistent activity (versus the existing 20%).

According to Body Moves there are ingrained reasons we choose the exercise we do. Looking more clearly at our physiological and psychological compatibility with certain activities will increase our chances to do it consistently and to get the most out of it. Or, to choose one that might offer new and unexpected benefits.

Gavin provides the reader with charts, questionnaires, graphics and information that outline everything you always wanted to know about your exercise disposition but were afraid to ask. MAD (Movement Activity Dimensions), BAD (Body Activity Dimensions) and PAD (Psychosocial

Charles Belanger

James Gavin on the definition for exercise: not just an activity for developing the body or mind, rather: an activity for developing the body AND mind.

Activity Dimensions) scales score you on facets of your movement patterns, body structure and personality.

You will find out if you are assertive, spontaneous, social, focused or competitive. And you'll be able to assess anything from yoga to golf, running to racquet games, body building to aerobics as fitness options for yourself.

So, while a medical doctor might prescribe some medication for depression in a patient, Gavin may pull out his charts and assign an exercise "package." Yoga might be a suggested undertaking for a hard-driving, aggressive male who — in more ways than one — needs to build some flexibility and calm in his life. However, a meek, passive woman may benefit from martial arts training that will simultaneously strengthen her upper body and her confidence.

Connection

For Gavin, 45, the mind and the body are vitally connected.

"Self-esteem," he states "is made up of body image, skills and ability, and social roles."

His own odyssey through mind and body began over 30 years ago when he was a competitive, long-distance swimmer in school. "I've been a fitness addict from way back," admits the winner of the 1984 Diplomate in Counselling Psychology (the highest honour in his field for professional excellence).

Though he had always emphasized fitness, when he was at grad school in New York in the mid-60s earning his PhD in Psychology, he drifted away from consistent exercising and his body weight and morale felt the effects. When he found himself doing post doctoral work in Colorado in the early '70s, he returned not only to running and swimming, but added yoga, Tai Chi, Modern Dance — and starting his own dance company — to his repertoire, "even though," he wryly added, "there were not too many cowboys walking around in leotards those days in that part of the country."

'Change is slow'

Powerful combination

The combination of fitness and mental attitude were powerful.

"Being involved in all those different forms of exercise, I experienced myself differently. I felt changes in my flexibility and openness on a psychological as well as physical level."

A major influence on him at that time was Ken Dychtwald's Body Mind (Pantheon Books, 1977). The book is about bioenergetics or body-oriented psychotherapy; how physical work is used to break through people's emotional defences. "Someone, for instance, who had been hurt emotionally as a child and developed physically with rounded shoulders — symbolic protective posture — might need to loosen and open those shortened pectoral (shoulder) muscles in conjunction with supportive psychological interventions."

Available in course

Most of this material is synthesized in Promoting Psychological and Physical Well-being, one of the two courses Gavin teaches in ApPS. Students are introduced to their "bodymind," expected to report on their "self-change", asked to interview individuals heavily involved in physical fitness and hand in a research paper on a related topic. "Those attending can learn about themselves from standard psychological approaches as well as through an emerging interpretive framework of body diagnosis. They will try to understand why we are shaped the way we are and how we can change our shape."

The Members of the Corporation, Concordia University.

We have examined the balance sheet of Concordia University as at May 31, 1987 and the statements of revenue and expense, changes in funds balances and changes in financial position of the Capital Fund for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, and accordingly included such tests and other procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

In our opinion, these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the University as at May 31, 1987 and the results of its operations, the changes in the funds balances and the changes in financial position of the Capital Fund for the year then ended in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles, as set out in Note 1 to the financial statements, applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

Notes to Financial Statements May 31, 1987

1. Summary of significant accounting policies

The University follows the accounting policies and practices recommended by the Administrative and Financial Affairs Committee of the Conference of Rectors and Principals of Quebec Universities.

Fund accounting

To ensure observance of limitations and restrictions placed on the use of the resources available to the University, the accounts are maintained in accordance with the principles of "fund accounting" by which resources for various purposes are classified into funds in accordance with activities or objectives specified.

Restricted gifts, grants, appropriations, endowments, and other restricted resources are accounted for separately in the appropriate restricted funds.

Such funds may only be utilized in accordance with the purposes established by the source of such funds and are in that respect in contrast with operating and capital funds over which the Board of Governors retains full control to use in achieving any of its institutional purposes.

Accrual basis

Transactions are generally recorded on the accrual basis.

Revenue and expense

Tuition fees are recorded as revenue in the financial year in which the course sessions are held. Operating grants are accounted for as revenue in the financial year to which they apply. Revisions thereto are accounted for when they are definitely established.

Other fees and income are recorded as they are earned.

Academic and other operating expenditures, including library acquisitions, are generally recorded as they are incurred. No provision is made for accumulated holiday and sickness benefits.

Inventory valuation

Inventories of bookstore and other materials are valued at the lower of cost and net realizable value, cost being determined by the retail cost method. Provision is made for slow-moving and obsolete inventories.

Deferred charges and prepaid expenses

Deferred charges and prepaid expenses are generally charged to operations in the subsequent year.

Capital expenditure grants and subsidies

Capital expenditure grants are accounted for upon Order-in-Council of the Province of Quebec. These grants are funded in due course by the issue of long-term debt to be subsidized from funds voted annually by the legislature of the Province of Quebec for this purpose. Capital expenditure grants are recorded in the University equity account. The capital portion of subsidies is recognized upon issue of the long-term debt and it is reduced by the capital portion of the annual debt service subsidy.

Fixed assets

Fixed assets are valued as follows:

Land is valued at cost;

Buildings are initially valued at cost and are revalued every 50 years;

Building alterations and improvements are capitalized and written off after one year;

Furniture and equipment is valued at cost and is written off after 15 years;

The full cost of library acquisitions is charged against revenue of the Operating Fund in the year of purchase and an amount equal to the full cost is added to the value of fixed assets shown in the Capital Fund and credited to capital equity;

Improvements to leased premises are capitalized and written off to operations over the terms of the related leases;

Depreciation, other than the above reductions, is not recorded in the accounts;

Interest is capitalized on real estate yet to be funded by government subsidies. The interest cost is imputed based on the rate of interest in effect on the University's outstanding bank loans.

Pensions

The University has a partly contributory, trustee and funded pension plan. The employer contribution to the pension plan was suspended for a one-year period which ended on May 31, 1987. The last actuarial valuation of the fund, at January 1, 1987, showed a net funding excess.
